STILL MAKING MUSIC "GREEN

Being "in harmony" means a lot of things to a lot of people. But as our planetary time passes and populations grow, it has become critical to consider the long term health and harmony of not only the people and other living things that inhabit the earth, but also the health of the living ecosystems of the planet itself.

Peripole, Inc. has always taken this commitment seriously from the time when we began our own program to reuse shipping boxes in 1992 to the present when we have completed an extensive insulation project including replacement of all of the large size windows on our building with energy conserving ones, thus yielding a smaller "carbon footprint". In 2008 we took the additional step of purchasing 100% of the electrical power we use from renewable "green" sources.

You may have noticed that we favor natural, biodegradable, renewable and recyclable materials in the construction of our instruments and in our packaging materials. This is not an accident. We seek to avoid using products that are harmful to the environment and to individual health, and we favor natural authentic materials such as wood and tunable skins for drums, but always with an eye to quality.

A Different Kind of Beginning

The year was 1945. World War II was near its end, but still raging in Europe and in the Pacific. A couple of young music educators and parents decided to turn their talents toward making instruments for music education in elementary schools.

Sylvia and Mack Perry named their fledgling business "Peripole." Their first product was their signature "Tymptone" drum which due to new materials and resource scarcity, was made in the living room of their apartment in Brooklyn, NY, from recycled and salvaged materials. Each drum was hand-painted by Sylvia.

The Perrys were soon delighted to receive an order from the famous Macy's department store in New York City, delivered delivered directly by the couple by baby carriage.

The years that followed saw Sylvia and Mack take Peripole out of their living room and into a storefront building. There was no one else making musical instruments for general music education at the time, and the Perrys saw rapid growth in Peripole. They took over the store next door, then the one next to that, and finally moved into a commercial factory building.

In the early 1960s, established leaders in their field, the Perrys forged an alliance with the Orff-Schulwerk movement in Europe and made history by becoming the first company to import Orff instruments into the United States for sale to schools. The Perrys were also charter members of AOSA. In 1974, after launching two famous brands of Orff instruments in the United States, the Perrys made a new partnership with the Bergerault company in France, having finally found a company whose Orff instrument quality matched their own high standards of manufacture.

In 1992, seven years after Mack's death, company founder Sylvia Perry moved to Salem, Oregon, to join forces with her son, now company president, Dr. Andrew Perry. In 2015, Peripole welcomed Ami Halverson (née Perry) to the company. Ami brings a renewed vigor and excitement to Peripole as well as the continuation of the company family.

Tradition Founded by instrumental and mechanical genius, Albert Bergerault in 1932, the Bergerault Company has continued in France for three generations, each training the next.

Expertise Expertise cannot be taught, it must be learned by experience. From the selection of rosewood for optimum physical properties for sound production; to tuning, bar dimensions, and style; Bergerault has painstakingly explored and found the techniques needed to construct great instruments. These techniques are present in their world-renowned mallet percussion instruments as well as Bergerault® Orff instruments.

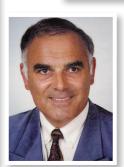

Quality From the chromed steel bars on our glockenspiels (other brands using raw steel, nickel-plating, or aluminum) to the individually pitched resonator tubes and intrinsic stands of our Chromatic Orff Instruments, to the superior rosewood quality and larger dimensions of our wood bars, Bergerault® Orff Instruments have multiple features not found in other brands of Orff instruments. These select features are detailed in the Specification sections of each instrument.

Service Peripole, Inc. is the exclusive North American source of Bergerault® Orff Instruments. We provide service, parts, and expert consultation regarding our instruments which are backed by our Triple Guarantee! (See pg. 79)

Below photos, left to right: 1) Albert Bergerault with one of his early multiple instrument inventions. 2) Colette Fergeau (née Bergerault) is shown receiving the French Legion of Honor Chevalier Medal from the Government of France for her work with Bergerault. 3) Gilles Fergeau modernized the design and manufacturing of Bergerault* products, and is responsible for many of Bergerault's most notable product innovations. 4) Mathieu Fergeau receiving the "Enterprise du Patrimoine Vivant" or "Company of Living Heritage" award from the French Government.

CARE OF ROSEWOOD BARS

Since Bergerault® Rosewood Bars are of the highest quality and well-aged, they only require occasional cleaning with normal care and usage.

For optimal care of your rosewood instrument, we offer the following care instructions:

- Whenever possible, avoid extremes in temperature and humidity.
- Instruments should not be stored in front of windows, radiators, air ducts, or direct sunlight.
- After extensive use, bars may be cleaned with lemon oil (containing no silicones, linseed oil, or beeswax). Apply sparingly and polish vigorously with a soft dry cloth.

- Aged rosewood bar and Techlon bar features and detailed specifications listed on page 9.
- Individual precision-tuned aluminum resonator tubes under each removable bar create perfect equal resonance.
- Entire section of resonator tubes joined together as a single removable unit.
- Sturdy, collapsible square tubular steel legs.
- Telescoping legs adjustable for height.
- Solid hardwood used in frame construction and covered externally with laminate finish for durability and easy cleaning.

GUIDE TO SELECTING INSTRUMENTS

It is an exciting time for teachers just starting out with Orff instruments or programs! We know how overwhelming buying new instruments for your classroom can be and therefore we offer this guide on what to consider when buying for your music program.

Types of Instruments: The Orff Instrumentarium consists of three different timbres- glockenspiels, metallophones, and xylophones; and three ranges of voice-soprano, alto and bass.

Sound: As diversity of sound is important, we suggest starting with at least one of each timbre. Metal instruments tend to overshadow wood in tonal volume, so it is wise to have more xylophones than metallophones. Alto and soprano instruments are economical and are the initial foundation of Orff sound. Bass xylophones make an excellent and important addition and are strongly recommended as an early purchase. Sub-contra and contra bass bars have true pitch and rich tones that make them excellent timpani replacements.

Building A Music Classroom: Financial limitations often make the process of building your classroom instrumentation take time, even several years. Be assured when you buy a Bergerault® Orff Instrument, you are buying an instrument that will remain in perfect condition and tune, and make adding new instruments a breeze. All Bergerault® Instruments will combine easily with others tuned to A440.

We know budget will always factor in your choice of instrument purchase and therefore we strive to provide the highest quality and the lowest possible price. Buying top quality instruments assures the life of the instrument for years to come.

Please contact our knowledgeable staff at 1-800-443-3592 for consultation and assistance.

A GUIDE TO ORFF MALLETS - FIBERGLASS VS BIRCH SHAFTS

Peripole, Inc. Is pleased to offer quality Wound Orff Instrument Mallets in two shaft materials: fiberglass-which comes with purchase of our diatonic and complete chromatic instruments, and birch hardwood. Both materials have advantages and disadvantages that can factor in when choosing one for your classroom.

Economy Orff Mallets, hard red rubber, pair

P2535

Fiberglass is extremely durable and break resistant. It has heavier head balance, which creates a feeling of "bouncing a ball" when playing. Many teachers and clinicians prefer and recommend this kind of balance. If mallet shafts are struck too forcefully against a hard surface, the protective coating on the shaft can eventually chip and expose fiberglass which can splinter.

Mallets can be repaired by covering or refinishing the damaged portion or replacement of the mallet.

P2525

$3.95..... $3.16

Birch Hardwood is a thicker, lighter material and creates a larger ergonomic grip and balanced feel. It is quite durable with normal use, however can be broken if stepped on or severely abused. If the shaft is struck too hard it will create visible imperfections in the wood. Luckily these are easy to repair by sanding and painting or covering.

Nylon is a splinter-free material and remains so even after extended use. It is more flexible than desired for longer mallets but is optimal for shorter ones. We now use nylon for all glockenspiel mallets.

Instrument sets designed by Kalani Das to be used with his World Rhythms curriculum.

World Rhythms is a classroom curriculum of traditional world music arranged for drumming ensembles with songs from the Caribbean, Brazil, and West Africa. It's designed for easy accompaniment on ukuleles, guitar, piano, and Orff instruments.

The World Rhythms program was created by drummer, educator, and music therapist, Kalani Das, and is focused on helping students reach social and emotional goals while developing rhythm, timing, pitch, ensemble skills, and other important life skills, such as listening, collaboration and leadership.

Students learn how to tune, setup, and play the most commonly used drums and percussion instruments, preparing them for the next level of music making. World Rhythms instrument sets increase diversity in classroom music and may be mixed and matched for endless possibilities.

TEACHERS NOTE:

A variety of rhythm instrument sets have been prepared. The aim of our Education Department in arranging these outfits was primarily to effect variety and balance in tone color and instrumentation. Economy Sets and Enriched Sets were created to serve different budget considerations. All sets contain the same high-quality, fully guaranteed instruments. The price differential is due to the inclusion of more expensive items such as drums and tambourines.

Note Knacks by Kristin Pugliese are a system of music notation blocks that even your youngest learners can hold and manipulate to create and perform their own musical compositions. These specially proportioned blocks display a musical note on one side and its corresponding rest on the back. Blocks represent whole, half, quarter, eighth, and sixteenth notes and are color coded so the name of each color says the rhythm. Note Knacks fit into three time signature frames that ensure children stay within the parameter of conventional notation while enjoying the freedom to create. Above all, Note Knacks are simple to understand and easy to use!

- Enables hands on learning.
- · Reveals the method behind notation.
- · Explains notes and rests simultaneously.
- Teachers music standards while encouraging creativity.
- · Creates tangible assessments.
- Provides concert material with minimal preperation.
- Suitable for large groups, small groups, and one on one instruction.
- · Appropriate for all types of learners from kindergarten up

Peripole's Guide To The Ukulele

WHY ADD UKULELE TO YOUR MUSIC PROGRAM?

- The ukulele is easy to learn with a high return in musicality for effort provided. Four strings make chording much easier than guitar and children will want to advance their musical skills and knowledge of music theory so they can take on increasingly more complex songs.
- Ukulele inspires kids to want to learn music! They can learn most contemporary songs on it and they want to learn to sing well with it. It is a very social instrument and can be a pathway to social engagement even from home. It is highly portable and easily shared. Not only that, but in comparison to other instruments the ukulele is relatively inexpensive.
- The Ukulele works well with your existing ensemble of elementary instruments.
 Easily integrated into your presentations along with movement, Orff instruments, percussion, and recorder.
- Skills learned and trained by ukulele practice are transferable to other string instruments. Learning chord formation, strumming technique and rhythm, and training fingers to create chords will be skills that can apply to other instruments if your students choose to branch out! Not just guitar, but also mandolin, banjo, bass and even orchestral instruments like violin.

SKILLS LEARNED FROM A UKULELE PROGRAM

- Music theory
- Reading of tab and traditional notation
- · Two hand playing method
- · Rhythm and strumming
- Chord formation and theory
- · Vocal advancement when paired with ukulele

UKULELE SIZES AND TUNING

Choosing a Ukulele Type – Soprano, Concert, and Tenor all use reentrant tuning (Hi-G/C/E/A), sometimes with low G on 4th string. These 3 all have identical pitches. Baritone is D/G/B/E (like 1st 4 strings of a guitar) and bass is E/A/D/G (like a bass guitar)

Soprano – Chosen for many elementary sets. Smallest scale for smaller hands. Playable by many adults. Typically has 12 frets.

Concert – Built on slightly larger scale than soprano, typically has 18 frets. Good choice for older upper elementary grades and up to adult. More frets allow for development of more advanced skills.

Tenor – Built on slightly larger scale than concert. Typically has 18 frets. Good choice for teens and adults with medium to larger hands.

Baritone – Because of different tuning requires different fingering. Built to a larger scale. Good bridge instrument to guitar as they are tuned the same.

Bass – The newest member of the ukulele family. Tuned and played the same as a full bass. Enriches the sound with bass lines. Compact size makes it great for travel and good for new learners of the bass.

MUSIC FOR CHILDREN VOLUMES

Carl Orff devoted much of his life to music for children. His pioneering work continues under the guidance of teachers and educators in many countries. The five basic German volumes of "Music for Children" by Carl Orff and Gunild Keetman were published between 1950 and 1954. The considerable growth of Orff-Schulwerk in the United States led to the publication of the American Edition (1977) to satisfy the requirements of a different educational system and national heritage.
